

AIR FORCE COMMUNITY PARTNERSHIP PROGRAM

As of June 2019

The Air Force Community Partnership program has been heralded by our Wing Commanders and community leaders as an ideal forum of exploring win-win partnerships.

In an effort to “Make Every Dollar Count,” the Air Force has made a concerted effort to cultivate partnerships between our installations and the local communities.

Since January 2013, the Air Force Community Partnership program has inspired 62 installations and communities to partner across a wide range of initiatives.

Beyond the tangible savings, the program creates an invaluable forum for fostering relationships and promoting innovation.

The Air Force process tapped into the intellectual capital and innovative spirit of installation and community leaders to find creative ways to accomplish the Air Force mission and enhance communities.

Installations and communities now have the tools needed to finalize many of the initiatives from training to science and technology educational programs to municipal services (water/waste-water treatment plants and shared refuse management services).

Installations and their communities developed more than 1,000 initiatives, and signed over 400 agreements that generated $68M in Air Force benefit.

Without losing focus on fostering a partnership mentality across the Air Force, and while continuing to strengthen its foundation by building upon concepts under development, we are now turning our attention to cultivate initiatives that show significant promise of large returns-on-investment or have Air Force-wide application.

From working with local municipalities to sharing firing ranges, ballfields, and golf courses, the potential to save Air Force resources while strengthening relationships with the community is huge.
